Dear Mr. Gunther:

Through Professor George W. Elderkin, of Princeton University, who visited your city last year, we have learned of your collection of Cypriote coins. Professor Elderkin tells me that you are a Columbian man, and it is possible that you know of our numismatic Museum which is situated but a little further up town.

We are endeavoring to keep in touch with our fellow countrymen in classic lands who may be in a position to give us information about rare coins that are found - and especially about any hoards which may be unearthed.

We should be very glad to have you tell us about your Collection, and any rarities which may have come into your hands.

Our President, Mr. Edward T. Newell, sometimes travels in your section of the world, and there is just a possibility that he might visit Cyprus in a year or so. Would you say that there was sufficient likelihood of his getting enough in the way of coins to make such a visit worth while?

I trust that these many questions will not place you under too heavy a burden in responding, but we should be very glad to have you give us as full a statement as may prove convenient.

Sincerely yours,

Secretary
